KIRKPATRICK
TRADITIONAL IRONWORK

EST.1855

Kirkpatrick has been manufacturing antique ironwork from its foundry since 1855.

Located in the heart of England we have preserved the integrity of our traditional manufacturing processes whilst making appropriate technical advances. Kirkpatrick 'mak siccar' that their products are the very best they can be.

Each malleable iron product is handcrafted and finished – making each one completely unique. Malleable iron provides strength and quality across a range of furniture which extends to around 2000 items.

Our aim is to stock most of our product lines and we will deliver your Kirkpatrick product within 24/48 hours. Our skilled craftsmen also manufacture to order which sometimes takes a little longer. Creating something this good and with this amount of care and individuality is worth the wait.

Kirkpatrick celebrates its history and heritage and still occupies the same premises from where it all began in 1855.

THE KIRKPATRICK DYNASTY

WILLIAM
KIRKPATRICK
ESQUIRE; JP

Our founder was born in 1817, created the Kirkpatrick Foundry in 1855 and was appointed Mayor of Walsall in 1886 and 1887. William's father was John Kirkpatrick, the Supreme Judge of the Ionian Islands.

His grandfather was Sir Thomas Kirkpatrick, the third Baronet. The first Baronet was created under the Royal House of Stewart in 1685 and the line still remains with Sir Ivone Elliot Kirkpatrick (born 1942).

THE KIRKPATRICK MARQUE

“I’LL MAKE CERTAIN”

The origin and meaning of the Celtic phrase “I mak siccar” is directly related to one of the most decisive moments in Scottish history.

The defeat of William Wallace in 1298 by Edward I at Falkirk is reputed to have been due to the defection of John Comyn (Earl of Badenoch) to the English forces.

After the capture and execution of Wallace in 1304; Comyn had ambitions of becoming King of Scotland. It was at the Monastery in Dumfries where Robert the Bruce and Comyn came face to face and after an argument, Comyn was wounded by Bruce. Bruce advised his escorts that he doubted Comyn had been slain; but Roger Kirkpatrick stepped forward saying “I mak siccar” (I’ll make certain) and finding Comyn wounded – stabbed him in the heart.

Robert the Bruce was subsequently crowned King of Scotland in 1306.

In 1951, a plaque was placed in Castle Street, Dumfries marking the spot where Comyn was slain by Roger Kirkpatrick.

NAME PLATES AND HOUSE NUMBERS

1855

Old English style name plates

Gold on black. This is an approximate guide as capitals are larger than lower case letters and spaces must be allowed for between words. Our pattern shop will make your individual plate on the most appropriate size for the best results. For longer names it may be better to use two plates alongside each other or one above the other.
